Discovering a restaurant with gluten-free pasta was a delight, though the limited sauce options left something to be desired for some diners. One customer wished for more variety beyond basic tomato sauce. Another vegetarian with gluten intolerance found their choices limited as well, settling for pasta with tomato sauce that was deemed less than tasty. Despite delays in service, diners found the food incredibly delicious, particularly the generous portions of gluten-free spaghetti with flavorful toppings. While not perfect, the restaurant overall left a positive impression on diners with allergies or intolerances looking for tasty options.
